ELI Weekly

Greetings from the English Language Institute (ELI)

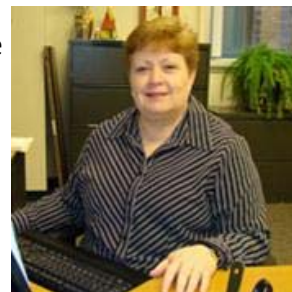

Welcome to the ELI !!! If you are a returning student, welcome back !!! Hope all of you had a nice and relaxing break. Now, it is the time for a fresh start. In 2009 summer semester, we have many new students from countries around the world . If you see a new face in the hallway, please try to introduce yourself and get to know each other (in ENGLISH, of course). We also have new and returning faculties.

Before the semester begins, I would like to introduce two of the most important people at the ELI. They are Jane Robison (the ELI director) and Alicia Coverston (the Administrative Secretary). You will see them and need them quiet often. Here are their greetings !!!

Hi! Welcome to the ELI . My name is Dr. Jane Robison, and I'm the English Language Institute Director. I began working with the ELI program in 1996 when it was in the developmental stages. Since that time, I have enjoyed seeing hundreds of students successfully complete our classes and go on to study in the university. My bachelor's degree is in art and my master's degree is in English with an emphasis in TESOL. My doctorate is in Educational Leadership and Policy Analysis. I also have teacher certification in art, English, and TESOL and have taught both in public schools and at the university. I enjoy traveling abroad, singing in a civic choir, and spending time with my family--my husband, two sons (who are both civil engineers) and my grandchildren.

Hola! My name is Alicia Coverston. I am the Administrative Secretary in ELI, and the first voice you hear when you call ELI. I'm originally from Puerto Rico but have lived in the U.S. for many years. I also had to learn English as my second language and understand what you have to go through to learn English. I have been in ELI since June 2006, but previously worked with international students at Creighton University in Omaha, Nebraska. I enjoy working with international students and helping them through the process of admission to our program. On a personal note, I enjoy singing, sewing and reading. My husband and I have two children—a daughter who lives in Indiana with her husband and my grandson Jaxson and a son who lives in California with his wife. Give me a call—I look forward hearing from you!

Weekly English Expression

Warm up to You !!!

- A: Hi! How are you coping with your change in environment?
- B: Well, it is a little different here from my former school. I'm from a small town, you see, and I find that people here are not as friendly as they are back home. I find I cannot get along with many of our classmates.
- A: Don't worry. I think most of them are just as shy as you are. They'll soon let up and eventually warm up to you*. Come, I'll introduce you to them.
- B: Thank you, I'd really appreciate that.

Warm up to - Become friendlier
